

Smith Will Rest At the Seashore

Dismisses Politics From His Mind For Week-End Vacation—Discusses Political Outlook With Governor Ritchie.

New York, July 28 (AP).—Thoughts of the White House took second place today to a desire for rest and recreation in the mind of Governor Smith as the Democratic nominee for president set out to play for a few days at the seashore.

Kept up by words of encouragement from the governor of a border state—Ritchie of Maryland—Smith dismissed politics from his mind while he and his family got ready to motor to Hampton Bay, on the south shore of Long Island, for a week-end vacation.

The governor of New York met the governor of Maryland here last night. There was a chat on the political outlook and they had dinner together.

Although nothing was given out to the public regarding their conversation, no one doubted that the two governors were in complete harmony as to the lines on which the Democratic presidential campaign should be conducted. Smith sought the advice of his friend from Maryland, not only as to strategy, but as to the line of his campaign argument, and he got it.

Think Alike on Prohibition. Particularly on prohibition the two governors are of about the same mind. Ritchie, like Smith, has been assailed for his views on the question. He has emphasized states' rights, and has been put on the black list of more than one prohibition organization for his stand.

Shortly after the arrival of Governor Smith, with his family, from Albany late yesterday, Ritchie, as had been agreed, called on the presidential nominee at his suite in the Biltmore Hotel. With him was Howard Bruce, Democratic national committeeman from Maryland. Both had dinner with the New York governor, who invited in also a few close friends.

Both Ritchie and Bruce returned to Maryland on the midnight train. Although they had little to say about their talk with Governor Smith, they were highly optimistic as to his chances in November. As Ritchie said, Maryland is safe for the Democrats this fall and Senator Bruce is certain to be re-elected.

The Maryland Governor, who was a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination himself but withdrew in Smith's favor before the Houston convention, urged his friend to conduct an intensive and extensive campaign. He said he was convinced Smith could win votes by coming in contact with the voters, and strongly advised a stump campaign that would take the nominee into all debatable states.

States' Rights on "Dry" Regulation. Although Governor Smith had disclaimed any intention of soliciting advice regarding the prohibition declaration in his acceptance speech to be delivered at Albany August 22, he was able to obtain first hand from Ritchie his views as to states' rights on the subject, states' responsibility as the Marylander prefers to style it.

Smith came to New York yesterday in time to confer with Ritchie, but too late in the day to see James M. Cox, former governor of Ohio and Democratic nominee in 1920, who, like the Maryland Governor, thinks the situation from the Democratic standpoint is shaping up in fine fashion. Cox talked over the outlook with John J. Raskob, new chairman of the Democratic national committee, who also left town for the week end before the nominee arrived.

As for the week end, Governor Smith, who would rather take a swim in the ocean than do anything else in the way of sports, was headed today for a spot on Long Island where years ago, during the summer vacations, he got a few points on politics from the late Charles F. Murphy, one-time Tammany leader.

Hoover Making Trip to Oregon

Will Travel Through Country Noted for Its Beauty—Real Thrills of Pleasure in Homecoming Welcome.

Stanford University, Cal., July 28 (AP).—His homecoming celebration in Francisco, Palo Alto and intermediate towns over, Herbert Hoover today turned his face to the north for a motor and railway journey that is to take him into Oregon and will last for five days.

The Republican presidential candidate leaves behind him the cares of the campaign and seeks rest and recreation in the out of the way places, where he will fish for trout, and visit again some of the picturesque spots in the northern part of his home state.

On the journey, the party included his son, Allan, his secretary, George Akerson, assistant United States Attorney William J. Donovan, and 13 newspaper correspondents and photographers.

At the nominee's request there will be no formal welcoming ceremonies or demonstrations in any of the towns through which he is to pass either in this state or Oregon, but crowds were expected to assemble at various points to get a look at the man called to the leadership of the Republican party.

The country through which Mr. Hoover is to travel is noted for its beauty. It contains some of the finest stands of redwood. He will also pass through a great chicken, orchard, vineyard and hop country, as well as an Indian reservation and through mountain scenery of surpassing beauty.

The trip is expected to benefit the commerce secretary as he has been through a hard grind in his campaign for the nomination and in his work since in getting his organization under way and in winding up his work in the commerce department.

Friday's Homecoming Celebration. The homecoming celebration in this section yesterday gave Mr. Hoover real thrills of pleasure, for not in years had he had the opportunity to greet so many of his old friends, both in San Francisco and the towns along the Peninsula southward.

After his welcome at the city hall in San Francisco by Mayor James Rolph, Jr., and an enthusiastic crowd gathered in the rotunda, he received a no less cordial greeting in the peninsula towns through which his automobile traveled on the way back to Stanford.

Mayors of these towns accompanied him within the limits of their official jurisdiction and the people turned out in large numbers to cheer him. From the time his train reached San Francisco just before noon, until he was back home again, the nominee had spent six hours, save a brief break for lunch, responding to the plaudits of his fellow Californians. His right arm became almost weary from constant raising of his hat, but he gave back smile for smile to the crowds, especially to the children who were in the front lines in the smaller towns.

Local Dry Agents Seize Five Stills

At Somers near Croton Falls, N. Y., and Arrest Four Men—Stills and Material Valued at $35,000.

Four stills and equipment were seized Friday morning at 5:30 o'clock by federal agents working out of the Kingston office. The agents visited the old abandoned machine shop on the Tom Butler farm, formerly known as the old Clover Hill mine at Somers, near Croton Falls, N. Y. The agents seized two 1,000 gallon mash stills and two 500 gallon stills with full equipment for manufacturing sugar alcohol. At the time of the raid they found and seized 10,000 gallons of sugar mash. 2,000 gallons of alleged finished alcohol and fifty bags of sugar.

Four men were placed under arrest at the still which was raided at daylight. The old mine machine shop was a difficult place to enter but all four men in the place were taken prisoners by the agents. The men placed under arrest gave their names as Anthony Giampetro of 33 Plain avenue, New Rochelle, Antonio Sisti of Somers, N. Y., Vito Penna of Somers, N. Y., and Frank Daroo of Somers, N. Y. Arraigned before Justice of the Peace Nathan Teklinsky at Yorktown Heights, the first three were held under $2,500 bail and Daroo was held in $1,000 bail. In default of bail they were lodged in the Westchester county jail at White Plains. The bail demanded by the justice was for appearance of the four defendants before a U. S. Commissioner in New York city at a later date.

The stills, equipment, alleged alcohol and mash taken in the raid were valued at $35,000 and were destroyed under the supervision of the agents after samples had been taken as evidence.

Two Traffic Violators.

Anthony Turck of 72 Flatbush avenue was arrested Friday for parking his automobile on a crosswalk on Broadway. This morning Judge Shufeldt fined him $5. George V. Vradenburg of Rifton, arrested for parking his car for two hours on Cedar street without lights, was fined $5 and payment of the fine suspended.

Inmates at Poor Farm Have Wealth

Bank Books Show $12,000 Without Interest Which Runs from 1910—Unashed Checks, Certificates and Property Add to Total.

Natick, Mass., July 28 (AP).—Three aged and eccentric sisters who claim descent from the family of George Washington as well as cousinship to Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes of the United States supreme court and who for 14 years have been cared for at the town farm have been discovered to be comparatively wealthy.

The women, all of whom are more than 70 are the Misses Electa and Lizzie Morse and Mrs. Susan Morse Tibbets. They have been helped by the town for the past 10 years and when their 100-year old home burned a year ago, they were removed to the poor farm. With an aged brother, Rufus, was taken to a hospital, where he died of malnutrition.

Belief persisted, however, that the sisters were not as poor as supposed and an investigation was started. When Charles L. Koff, chairman of the board of public welfare, was named conservator for the women at the petition of the town, the sisters appeared in court to enter vigorous protest and to assert that they had been put on the farm against their wishes and were able and anxious to pay the town what it had expended on them.

Bank Books for $12,000. They even threatened to carry the matter before the supreme court. In an examination of their effects, Koff discovered nine bank books with deposits totalling $12,000 on which no interest had been entered since 1910. The bank accounts were the property of Mrs. Tibbets, widow of a Boston contractor.

An award of $3,000 from the Metropolitan Water Commission for a century ago and refused by the Morse family will have to be sought through an act of the Legislature since it has reverted to the state. Several checks in excess of settlements and a bequest of several thousand dollars which the sisters have never troubled to collect added to the total.

Own Certificates and Property. In addition, Koff says, the women are known to possess several valuable certificates of deposit which they have refused to relinquish, and they also own considerable property in this town.

Unless the sisters aid in determining the full amount of their estate for a report to the court, they may have to remain in the poor house indefinitely despite their avowals of a desire to pay the town its bill and re-establish a home.

For years the sisters have been familiar figures hereabouts. They dressed in the mode of half a century ago and for many years had allowed no one to enter their home.

Mr. Berres reported that the heating and ventilating contract had not been awarded. The lowest bid had been from Weber & Walter but Mr. Walter had informed the committee that there had been a serious mistake in the bid submitted by that firm. Bannon Plumbing, Heating and Contracting Company. Mr. Berres stated that the committee had been unable to determine what action to take and referred the matter back to the board for consideration as to whether to award the contract to the next bidder or to re-advertise.

Big Church Picnic At Forsyth Park

August 1 Day of Reformed Church Missionary "Test"—Dr. Cantline the Guest—Other Speakers to be on Program.

Plans for a big picnic rally, or missionary "test" at Forsyth park on Wednesday, August 1, have been completed. The "test" is for all ministers, consistory members and friends of the churches of the Classis of Ulster, Dutch Reformed Church. A committee of publicity has sent the following letter out to all congregations of the county:

"The Classis is sponsoring a missionary 'test' or picnic for our forces and folks, to be held Wednesday, August 1, in Forsyth Park, Kingston, and invites you all to come and enjoy an outing together. There will be the opportunity to renew friendships and form new ones; and the loyalty to the church will be stimulated. Particularly is this to be an opportunity for us all to show our interest in and sympathy for the work which Dr. James Cantline is about to resume in Mesopotamia, where we and the Presbyterians, and the German Reformed people are working together to win that world for Christ."

"Dr. Cantline is soon to return, and at this rally or picnic we will have an opportunity to meet him and to hear one of his splendid messages. Beginning at 10:30 a. m., there will be a program both before and after the picnic lunch and social hour. We expect to have Dr. William L. Chamberlain, the Rev. Henry Slayter, Dr. Seely and Dr. Wallace with us, to bring to us such inspiring words as they have for us. There will be a song service, at the beginning of the 'test.' Offerings will be made for Dr. Cantline's work. 'Brother Simons and his efficient corps will serve hot dogs and other goodies at the booths. The people will, as at similar gatherings, bring their lunch. We hope, however, that the 'canteen' will be liberally patronized for we wish to assure Dr. Cantline that there will be nothing lacking in our support as he goes forth to his great work overseas."

"This rally promises to be a fine opportunity to register our interest in our dear friend and fellow worker, Dr. Cantline, and we trust there will be a park full on August 1 to show that interest."

The committee further suggests that members of the various churches to be present will be requested to take a place at the front of the meetings to help in singing. Folks who have inclination for soft sitting are asked to bring along their own cushions.

A Stutz sedan owned and operated by Maurice Donath of 3135 50th street, Long Island, and a White motor truck owned by the Pine Hill-Kingston Bus Corporation were in collision near Chester Lyons's garage at Ashokan Friday afternoon at about 2:40 o'clock. The truck was proceeding east and the Stutz which was bound for Fleischmanns was going west.

At the time of the accident it was raining hard and it is alleged the Stutz was traveling at a fast clip just prior to the accident, one witness claiming the Stutz was traveling at 40 miles an hour a short time prior to the accident.

After the collision the Stutz turned over and caught fire. It was consumed. The occupants of the sedan were Mr. and Mrs. Donath and their two daughters, Eleanor and Maxie. All four were rescued from the burning car before they were burned, but all were so severely injured that they were taken to the City of Kingston Hospital for treatment. Ruth L. Hogan of West Hurley, who was on the scene with a car, volunteered to take the injured to the hospital. Mrs. Donath, 32, sustained a laceration of the breast, cuts over her eye and bruises on the body. When the cars came together the Stutz turned over and caught fire. The White truck was thrown against a pole in the ditch and the left front wheel was torn off and was found after the fire under the wreckage of the Stutz car which stood diagonally across the road headed southwest. The engine of the White truck was torn loose from the frame and the cab smashed and the left front fender damaged.

The Buick sedan, which was being towed at the time of the impact, ran into the rear of the truck but was not badly damaged. The driver of the truck and Buick car together with several people attracted by the impact assisted in the rescue of the occupants of the Stutz.

No Hostile Action Against Italians

Italy Survivors Pass Unmolested Through Sweden on Their Way Home—General Noble Uncertain of Plans for Future.

Stockholm, Sweden, July 28 (AP).—Although there have been inquisitive onlookers at every station, the passage of the survivors of the Italian dirigible Italia through Sweden has not been attended by any hostile demonstration. Captain Alberto Marziano, whose leg was amputated after gangrene set in, was not returning with his comrades aboard their special car to Italy today. He was left behind on the base ship Citta Di Milano at Narvik, since he was too ill to make the journey home.

A little girl handed General Umberto Noble a bunch of flowers at the small country station of Vindeln. The commander of the Italia remarked to a newspaperman later: "Tell your paper there is much bitterness in my heart but I was deeply affected by the magnanimity of this sweet little Swedish girl who in a lovable manner handed me beautiful flowers."

The car of the Italians was coupled to the train so that everyone could pass through it freely. The Italians were not segregated in any manner. They took their meals in the general dining car. General Noble said he did not know whether they would return to Spitzbergen to participate in the search for the six members of the sleigh crew still missing and for Roald Amundsen and the five men with him. He must first learn the orders of the Italian government. The Citta Di Milano will stay at Narvik for a week awaiting two new Italian seaplanes before going to Spitzbergen.

The sister of Professor F. Bechounek, Czechoslovakian meteorologist, was aboard the train returning to Prague with her brother. She was friendly to the whole company. The Swedish flyers who were engaged in the rescue work at Spitzbergen also were aboard the train. They were cheered everywhere.

Court Sentences Negro Slashers

Wife Carrier Committed to Danmore Prison by Judge—Fencer Pickett After Losing Knife.

Ernest Kelley, held by the city judge to await the action of the grand jury on a charge of assault, was sentenced to the county jail for 30 days for cutting his wife with a razor on June 24, entered a plea of guilty to the charge when arraigned in county court Friday morning and the provisions of section 222 of the Penal Law. Kelley made application for an order for prosecution on information filed with the court. Kelley maintains that he did not intend to cut his wife with the razor. This the court was not inclined to consider a justification for the assault and sent Ernest to Clinton state prison at Dannemora for an indeterminate term, the minimum of which shall be two years and the maximum four years.

At the time of the slashing Kelley had come to Kingston from Roscoe's brickyard, where he worked, seeking his wife, who had left home some time prior to visit a lady friend in Kingston. After the visit she had returned home for a few days but returned to Kingston where she was alleged to be cooking for three colored men at 65 Murray street. It was at that address that Kelley located his wife and cut her very seriously about the face hands and body. She was confined to the hospital for some time under the care of Dr. F. A. Johnston.

Benson Also Pleads Guilty. Roscoe Benson, colored, held by the city judge on a charge of assault second degree, alleged to have been committed in this city on May 11, also asked for an order to prosecute on information filed with the court. Benson has been in trouble before. Chris J. Finnegan appeared for Benson and stated that the defendant was willing to plead guilty to assault, third degree, although he had only acted in self defense on the day of the alleged assault. On the day in question Roscoe was on his way home in the lower part of the city. There had been some prior argument between Benson and Ernest Williams, another colored man. As Benson arrived at his place of abode shortly after midnight he observed Williams. He did not enter the porch but stood in the yard. He alleged, according to a statement made to the police, he was then attacked by Williams who has a reputation as a scrapper.

Lost Knife, Seized Fence Picket. Benson alleges that he acted in self defense when he, too, drew a knife and called in his opponent who was also wielding a knife. In the scarp Benson lost his knife and then seized a fence picket with which he continued to defend himself. He defended himself so successfully that he won the fight and both men landed in the hospital badly cut up. Benson still wears a scar about 8 inches long on his face and several other marks of battle.

Williams is also charged with assault as a counter charge in the affair between the two men. Mr. Finnegan asked that under the circumstances the court deal as leniently as possible with Benson. Benson has been in jail since the fight.

Three Months in Jail.

District Attorney Traver stated that he was inclined to agree with the request for leniency and would accept a plea of guilty to assault, third degree. The court sentenced Benson to three months in the county jail.

John Rafferty Dropped Dead

Well Known Downtown Resident Collapsed in the West End Lunch on the Strand This Morning.

John M. Rafferty of 42 Screamore street dropped dead this morning in the West End Lunch on West Strand, of which Daniel McGrane is proprietor. Death, according to Coroner W. Norman Conner, was due to fatty degeneration of the heart and a stroke of apoplexy.

As Rafferty suddenly collapsed in the West End Lunch, those there immediately telephoned for Dr. John F. Larkin, but Rafferty was dead when he arrived.

Rafferty was widely known in the downtown section of the city and had resided on Screamore street for many years. He was last employed as a night watchman at the W. F. & R. boardwalk on East Strand, but retired several months ago. He had not been in the best of health for some time.

Dr. Larkin after examining the body and ascertaining the cause of death, notified Coroner Conner, who ordered the body turned over to Undertaker James M. Murphy. No arrangements have been made for the funeral.

Sign of Early Frost.

Tourists say that the katydid have been heard along the trails of the Catskill mountains. According to weather prophets this is a sign that frost is but six weeks off. It is hoped by the farmers that this season will find an exception to the old saying, owing to the poor weather for growing crops.

Henry Hudson's Visit to Kingston

Foreign Powers Write New History of Hudson's Discoveries—Local Accounts of Special Interest—Author Visits Kingston.

(By F. G. Clough.)

Of special interest to Kingston is a book by Llewellyn Powys, recently published by Harper and Brothers in their Golden Hind series, titled "Henry Hudson."

Mr. Powys has brought out an interesting and valuable account of the early English navigator, whose discoveries named one of our most important and picturesque rivers. The story of Henry Hudson's voyage of 1609, his discovery of the mouth of the river which now bears his name, his sail northward, his visit to Kingston, all make a compelling account full with the adventure of history in the making; and the rest of the book, is written in a graphic, meaty, English style. The author has a cosmopolitan detachment from his tale, yet an unusual interest in the downfall of the American Indians, the beginning of American history, and in what he presents as "the far-reaching progressions of all life, as they hesitate, retreat, and advance to the swift transforming measure of 'cormorant' and 'time'."

He tells how the "Half Moon," of Kingston, the Catskill Mountains in view, put to shore; how the water and mate went on shore and were entertained by "an old savage, governor of the country," and how the navigators reported: "The land is the finest for cultivation (we) ever set foot upon." "abounds in trees of every description." They saw "a slate-like material which they thought could be used for roofing houses."

Mr. Powys brings a literary background to this very important and interesting history; he is "one of several brothers, all writers."

Author Familiar With Region.

He visited Woodstock a few years ago, stayed in an old farmhouse on a mountain. He will be remembered by those who knew him as a sort of a red-headed giant, a quiet man who did not push his presence on others about the town. Those who have read previous books of Mr. Powys will remember with pleasure his extremely beautiful style, his inherent sympathies for mankind, his peculiarly attractive talent for always making his writing alluring for the reader.

The reviewer cannot refrain from pointing a brief passage from the "Henry Hudson" book which shows the author's attitude toward the vanished American whom the English Navigators found populating Kingston and the Catskills in 1609. "I write about the Indians."

He has scrambled through the underbrush of the Catskill Mountains; by ferny hollow and murmuring stream; and as my feet pressed the leaf-mould, over-muffled with the softness of moss, I have been aware of them and their long past, brushing against my consciousness like an echo, like the wind in the pine needles, or again, "Whenever, down in some distant street of New York city, I have observed one of this race, dressed in the filthy habiliments of his ancient enemies, yet even so, still recognizable by the rising swing of his unusual walk, there, I have said, 'goes a King in exile.'" Or yet again: "These people performed, undisturbed by the disease of thought, the simple occupations of each hour... wherever a common crowd, flying over the uneven tree-tops, utters its hoarse lonesome cry, the spirit of the Indian lives."

These lines are enough to give Mr. Powys's wonderful style, his somewhat personal talents at the writing which one feels to lift his history far above the ordinary run of such works; altogether his work is as fascinating as fiction—more so!

The basic account is worth a careful reading; this book will take its place on future shelves as even more important than Roade's, Asher's, Bacon's and Janvier's histories of Henry Hudson and his voyages.

Findings Long Lost Verdict.

In Powys's book is the first printing of the lost verdict discovered by the author in his researches, the verdict passed in the High Court of Admiralty on the mutineers who put Hudson into the shallop and left him to his sad ending. Mr. Powys returned to his native land, England, after his sojourn at Woodstock and New York city, and this latest book from his pen was written from Dorset, 1927.

The reviewer is indebted to the Kingston Public Library for the loan of "Henry Hudson."

Four Youths Die In Boat Crash

Holland, Mich., July 25 (AP).—Four Holland youths were killed and two companions were injured in a collision last night between a speedboat in which they were riding and the Goodrich Line passenger steamer, City of Holland.

The dead are Paul Landwehr, 21, son of A. A. Landwehr, millinery furnace manufacturer; John C. Nystrom, 14, Earl Van Lente, 15, and John Arends, 32.

Robert Mendrano, 24, of New York, and George Lyle, 21, Los Angeles aviator, were injured. Witnesses said the speedboat, piloted by Landwehr, circled the steamer, a side wheeler type, several times, breasting waves left in its wake, when suddenly the steering apparatus failed and the small craft crashed head on into the whirling paddle blades of the City of Holland.

The speedboat was crushed beneath the surface and crushed, Mendrano and Lyle were knocked clear of the boat by the force of the collision. The others were trapped and either killed or drowned.

Boats were lowered from the City of Holland and Mendrano and Lyle rescued. Early today the bodies of the other four had not been recovered.

The accident occurred in a channel between Black Lake and Lake Michigan.

Static Friday afternoon faded away before dark and early evening reception was excellent until the regular 9 o'clock noises began shortly before that hour. These persisted until 10 and perhaps longer.

There was static and weakness this morning.

VOLCANO MAYON AGAIN GOES ON RAMPAGE.

Manila, July 25 (AP).—Western Albay province was held in a grip of terror today as the volcano Mayon began a new rampage, shooting tons of lava hundreds of feet into the air, while the entire countryside shook and rumbled in a series of earthquakes.

Swayed by superstition and fear of the volcano, many of the natives fled at the beginning of the phenomenon. A few hours later, as the flow of lava showed no signs of abating and the earthquakes and rumblings continued, the few persons remaining in the town of Libog, near the foot of the mountain also fled.

This was said to be the worst eruption of Mayon since 1900, when the crater was particularly violent. A new crater was opened about 500 feet from the summit of the mountain this morning. When the first discharge of molten lava struck the earth at the base of the mountain it splashed about half a kilometer.

Huge quantities of the melted rock started oozing toward Libog. A railroad and a main highway in the path of the lava were threatened.

This is the second serious eruption of Mayon in the last two weeks. When the previous phenomenon was at its height, Governor General Stimson made a trip to Albay province to view the situation and assure the populace. At that time the seismologists declared the worst of the current cycle of eruption was over.

TEXTILE WORKERS UNION DEFER STRIKE PARADE.

New Bedford, Mass., July 25 (AP).—Postponement for a week of the proposed strike parade of the textile workers' union scheduled to be held in defiance of police orders, was announced at headquarters of the T. W. U. at 11 a. m. Details of out of town police were arriving this morning in response to calls for aid yesterday.

Chief McLeod said that there would be no lessening of police preparations until he knew that no parade would be held.

TENNIS DOUBLES STOPPED ON ACCOUNT OF RAIN.

Anteup, July 25 (AP).—The Davis cup doubles match between Tilden and Hunter for the United States and Borotra and Cochet of France was stopped on account of rain with two in the first set.

Play was definitely abandoned for today and will be resumed tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Arrested on Delaware Warrant.

James T. Baldwin was arrested in Saugerties today by State Troopers Drumm and Lawson on a warrant issued in the state of Delaware charging him with desertion of his family. He was brought to Ulster county jail by Deputy Sheriff Connerly to be held to await arrival of an officer from Delaware.

Harrel With Cleveland.

Omaha, Neb., July 25 (AP).—Luther "Red" Harrel, outfielder of the Omaha club of the Western League, has been sold to the Cleveland Indians of the American League. "Barney" Burch, owner of the Omaha club, said Harrel was exchanged for a pitcher and an unannounced amount of cash.

RADIOTIC

Loyalty

For the man who is discouraged, demoralized by the rush of events, oppressed by petty failures, there is no stimulant like the compelling power of an intensive loyalty. Let the man who is not making good in his work dedicate himself to a new sense of allegiance to those with whom and for whom he labors, says the Longview News. Out of vigorous loyalty to his fellow workers and his employer will come the spirit of which success is forged. Let the man whose life seems dull and sordid find a loyalty—a loyalty to his home, perhaps, to his city, to his college, to his church—and life will be transformed for him as the gleam of purpose dispels the clouds of cynicism and mistrust. Out of loyalty to others will come that greater loyalty to self that transmutes a person into a personality, a slave into a servant, and a human into a man. Let us attain to a loyalty and hold fast to it.

Is it advanced age slipping over us, or is it an actual state of affairs, that makes us believe that there used to be more bluebirds than there are today? asks the Fort Wayne News-Sentinel. It's good to observe that there are still a good many bluebirds now—but we can't help wishing there were more. Nothing is more beautiful in all the kingdom of birds than the bluebird, whom John Burroughs described as having the tinge of heaven on his back and the tinge of earth on his breast. That seems to be the best herald of fairer days. Somebody has said that the sight of a bluebird "seems to make you glad for the beauties of earth and to make you think of a world fairer still." No wonder the bluebird has long served as the eternal and universal symbol of happiness among men. There must be bluebirds in heaven. It wouldn't be heaven without them.

Why not, speculates the Lafayette Journal and Courier, an adjustable heel for milady's slipper—one that can be inflated for evening, deflated for early morning and semi-blown up for afternoon or street use? A rubber heel filled with air ought to provide the resiliency and cushiony effect needed. Then, too, with balloon heels the reckless "stomper" of the dance floor might be forcibly reminded by an occasional blowout at the heel that the proprietries were being too enthusiastically "trampled" on.

Dancers of the "black bottom" and the Charleston would then be compelled to carry spares. The regular filling station service of the ballroom might easily be equipped to supply "free air." For that matter, each escort might carry a bicycle pump and siphon combined when going out among the high heels.

When Thomas Edison reached Fort Myers for his forty-second winter in Florida he was met at the station by a brass band. It would have been more appropriate to have welcomed him with a phonograph.

It is confidently expected by aviation promoters that Charles Lindbergh will make a reliable business man, even though he takes no great interest in golf and after-dinner speeches.

It is stated that every day 2,000,000 citizens are ill. Taking into consideration the transient grippe epidemics, the estimate seems rather conservative.

There would be great saving to the popular purse if car fares could be reduced as easily as taxes.

Nothing is ever quite as you expected it to be. Often it is an improvement.

The GUIANAS

Kaleteur Falls in British Guiana.

(Prepared by the National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.)

THE Guianas—British, French and Dutch—which form continuous areas on the north coast of South America, are the only territories in that continent not under a local, republican form of government. The word Guiana is derived from the name of an old Indian tribe which once inhabited the entire country between the mouths of the Orinoco and Amazon rivers as far back as the Lito Negro and the Casiquiare. This huge territory formerly went by the name of Guiana, but much of it is now included in Venezuela and Brazil.

Guiana missed one chance for fame through a typographical error. The humble "guinea" pig, a native son, would have carried its home land's name into popular usage but not early writers confused the habitat of the rodent with African Guinea—a confusion which is not altogether overcome to this day.

Guiana first came into public notice because of the tales of Juan Martinez, who, for getting his lies believed, outranked Munchausen or Ananias. His tales of Maroon, where the monuments were marvels of lustreous gold, and where men were anointed with oil and then sprinkled with pulverized gold, captured the imaginations of many explorers even before Sir Walter Raleigh penetrated the humid interior of Guiana in search of this El Dorado. So generally is the term now used in a figurative sense to denote any fanciful rainbow's end that it is hard to realize how seriously the tales of Martinez, and lesser liars, were credited. Indeed, El Dorado's mythical court city, the lake on which it was supposed to be located, and the estimated extent of the country itself appeared on maps until the serious scrutiny of Humboldt exploded the fairy tale.

The first actual settlements were made by Dutch colonists in the last quarter of the sixteenth century. Paramaribo, or, as the Dutch call it, Surinam, the capital of Dutch Guiana, is interesting as the city which was traded to the English for the settlement of New Amsterdam on Manhattan island, present-day New York. Paramaribo now has a population of about 40,000 people, mostly negroes.

Gained Black Name.

Of the three colonies, French Guiana, the easternmost, is the smallest. Because it has been heard of principally in connection with the deportation of convicts, and especially in regard to the Dreyfus case, French Guiana has gained a black name. It is true the region has been developed chiefly as a penal station, and perhaps it deserves its evil reputation; but in physical aspects and possibilities, at least, it is closely comparable to British and Dutch Guiana, both of which have had a measurable degree of prosperity. With the convict milestone around its neck, French Guiana, as a colony, has never really had a chance.

Cayenne, known by sound at least because it has given its name to a pepper, is the capital and only port of importance in French Guiana. Its inhabitants number 15,000, nearly a third of the entire population of the country. With its houses of colored stucco and its avenues and squares shaded by superb palms, it has attractive aspects. In it dwell men of many climes and colors. Chinese keep the shops; natives of Indo-China supply the markets; officialdom is French; and on the streets are to be seen creoles from Martinique, Arabs from northern Africa, and negroes from Senegal and the Guiana interior.

Dutch Guiana is about the size of Florida. The British first held it; and the Dutch first held what now is British Guiana. The easternmost of the three foreign holdings, French Guiana, is used, in part, as a penal colony.

Along the coast Dutch Guiana is a strip of transplanted Holland. Back in its forests is a bit of Africa, inhabited by Bushmen, who live much as do their Dark Continent cousins. The Africans were imported in slave days, and chased back to the forest fastnesses when the tax collector came around. Many of them found their tropical environment there so home-like that they stayed their owners.

Paramaribo has the immaculate appearance of a Dutch city; it has one natural extravagance of which it is proud, its streets lined with mahogany shade trees. For the trees on one block, spreading over neat weather-board houses, a lumber firm once offered $200,000, and the residents declined to sell.

British Guiana has great potential riches, but has always lacked the labor to bring its hidden wealth into usable form. It is a tropical land with much rich soil and an abundant growth of tropical plants. The first step in developing such a region is to push back the jungle; then a constant battle must be waged to keep it back. Where this has been done by the teeming populations of certain tropical countries, such as Java and parts of the Straits Settlements, the region has become one of the world's garden spots; but in British Guiana the puny attacks that man has so far made in his war on an impenetrable vegetation, have in most cases led to defeat.

Great rivers flow through the land, forming wide estuaries where they meet the sea. The earliest settlers, the Dutch, sailed up the wide streams and attempted to carve plantations from the forests on their banks. But this was the most difficult method of attack, and in addition the soil in the areas selected was none too rich. Near the coast were wide mud flats of rich alluvial matter without forest growth. Reclaiming overgrown lands was a problem better understood by Dutchmen, so they retreated before the forests and made a new start on the coastal lowlands. Dikes and drainage ditches were constructed, with a system of sluice gates to let the water out at low tide. In this way much rich land was brought under cultivation. Some of it is as much as four feet below the level of the highest spring tides.

When the British captured the country from the Dutch in 1795 they continued to develop the coastal mud flats and the slightly higher land immediately inland, leaving the forests practically untouched. That policy has been followed pretty closely since, so that even now the inhabitants and development of British Guiana are in large part confined to a strip of territory from ten to fifty miles wide along the coast.

Has Many Rivers.

British Guiana is a land of many rivers. Three very large ones flow northward to the coast roughly parallel: the Essequibo, Demerara, and Berbice. These are the main roads to the interior, especially the Demerara and Essequibo. The total mileage of rivers in the country is about 100, all but 20 of it parallel to the coast and within five miles of the sea.

The coast country is given over to agriculture, chiefly the production of sugar and rice. Inland the relatively slight activity is concentrated on the extractive industries, the collection of balata gum, the bringing out of small quantities of timber, and the placer mining of gold. The colony's diamond fields have produced millions of dollars' worth of gems in recent years. The timber industry has never been highly developed. Its most important contribution is the wood known as "green-heart" which is impervious to the marine borer, the teredo. It is used in dock and wharf construction throughout the world.

If growth in population and solution of the labor problem ever permit British Guiana to become intensively developed, it will not lack water power for its industries. Rapids and cataracts are found in all the rivers; and about 200 miles from the coast, on the Potaro river, a tributary of the Essequibo, is Kaleteur falls, one of the great waterfalls of the world. The river has a sheer drop of 741 feet, and cataracts increase the total fall to more than 800 feet, approximately five times the height of Niagara.

Georgetown, the capital of British Guiana, is situated near the mouth of the Demerara and affords a good harbor for ocean-going ships of fair size. It is a clean and attractive tropical town, with its shady streets and its wooden houses set on logs.

Included in the List of Popular Bathing Beach Outfits for the Season is the Coverall Suit of Printed Crepe. The Suit of Jersey Also is Liked. Pajamas of Batik on Crepe de Chine is Another Favorite.

Beach Togs Must Be in Gay Colors

Lively Ensembles in Varied Styles of Line, Shade and Material.

Beach dress has come to mean something far more elaborate than a mere bathing suit and the necessary accessories. It includes a whole outfit, observes a "rifer in the New York Times."

he suit itself to an attractive costume of wrap, in which to go from the bathroom to the water or to lounge in on the beach, and hat and shoes, and perhaps the new trousers, which are making a widespread appearance this summer.

The ensemble idea is dominant in dress of both the simple and intricate sorts, and the new models present many varied styles in line, color and material. In a way the bathing suit of the season reflects the general mode in dress, being more feminine, more artistic and distinctly more individual than the fashion of past seasons. A bathing suit may now be as practical as the most athletic bather and swimmer may require. Also it may be as smart and "dressy" as needed to present the wearer most becomingly on the beach.

For Style and Comfort.

The leading couturiers both abroad and at home have given their attention to the beach costume with charming success. Lucien Lelong has blazed the trail with a number of striking ensembles which include everything for style and comfort that can well be included in one wardrobe. His bathing suit is of a more definite design than the simple slip-on of past seasons. It has now a semblance of being in two or three pieces, with a belt with which the trousers are held to the shirt. In some of the two-piece suits the shirt is made in the shape of a waistcoat or cardigan and buttoned down the front and sewn to the short trousers. With these, a belt is worn at the normal waistline.

This model is varied in several ways. In one design, the shirt is cut like a sweater extending well over the hips. It is fastened at the neck with a small turnover collar, and is buttoned down the front and belted with a narrow strap of the material. This model is made of one of the new artificial silk jerseys.

Another designer, Mary Nowlshy, makes a bathing suit in which the shirt, of jade green jersey, is worn with a pair of wide trousers of brown, green and white checked wool. These are belted, and are cut almost knee length. Jean Regny is making some smart bathing ensembles, using much white, white and black and scarlet. Most of her models include a sleeveless shirt, trousers that fasten at one side with a row of pearl buttons, and usually a shirt, worn outside, which is trimmed with an appliqued motif and belted with a bright contrasting color.

Little straight coats of the same material as the suit are shown with these models, trimmed in so a decorative fashion. Odd coats are made of different fabrics with an applique of a geometric pattern in a contrasting color. White jersey, flannel or moire is used for the suit, and over this is worn a jacket of green, scarlet or blue wool, or one of white with a decorative applique in color or black. All of these coats have cape and shoes to match.

Introduces Beach Coat.

Lelong has succeeded in introducing the beach coat as a part of the conventional bathing costume of this season. It is shown in designs that may suitably be worn with any of several suits. In one of the complete beach outfits yellow and brown jersey are effectively combined. The shirt and trousers are of pale yellow and have stripes of deeper yellow and brown woven to form a border about the top and bottom. A knee-length coat with the stripes used down each side of the front is tied about with a sash of the goods, and the sandals are made of yellow rubberized leather with straps of brown.

This ensemble includes a parasol, a flat valise-shaped bag and cushion, all of the same material and all trimmed with the stripes. The same designer is making other original models in combinations of different fabrics, using linen on wool, and other fabrics on silk backgrounds in geometric patterns.

The bold, modernistic designs in sharply contrasted colors are especially effective on bathing suits, and some ultra-smart models of this type are shown. A suit of athletic type is made with a shirt of white tussah silk and trimmed with a narrow band of navy blue flannel stitched about the edge of the square neck, a monogram of the same cloth being applied in front and a wider band forming a V running up from the waistline. The trousers and wide belt are both of the flannel.

Jean Patou makes a smart suit of moss green flannel, the shirt and trousers being joined with a fitted yoke, and a topcoat cut finger-tip length. The trousers of this suit are made wide, almost like a shirt, with a cluster of plaits at each side, and both shirt and coat are monogrammed in light green cloth.

The three-piece suit, which is a modern version of an old fashion, is very stylish. It consists of a shirt bodice, a short skirt and "shorts" of flat crepe, all in one shade of blue. The shirt is sleeveless and the skirt, which is laid in inverted box plaits back and front, is attached with a wide glide to the crepe tied in a bow at one side. A bathing suit of white washable moire built on the Vionnet bias lines is cut in one piece but with a girdle at each side to give the appearance of a skirt. This is sleeveless and décolleté, and has stitched bands forming shoulder straps, all of the edge and seams being piped with coral silk. Each of these suits has a cap and sandals to match, and many have also a coat, parasol and smaller accessories in the same color scheme.

In a wardrobe that is planned for a season at the seashore some designers are making a sort of ensemble now called a beach set. It consists of a beach coat, umbrella, rug and cushion of decorative material that will serve as a background for the bathing suits, which are made in harmonizing colors.

Pajama Suits Popular.

Pajama suits are an item in seashore dress that has become very popular. They are made to replace the bathing suit for the siesta on the beach, and one made of crepe, tussah silk or lightweight jersey of silk, wool or artificial silk. A wide assortment of colors and color combinations is shown, especially the new blues and greens, purple in several shades, and yellow. A suit of yellow is bordered with havana brown, a line between of deep orange.

Pajamas of vivid green crepe are edged with broadened ribbon in bright purple, yellow and blue in a small flower design, and others in a solid color are trimmed with the fancy "wash" ribbons, which are now shown in many pretty patterns. Some lovely beach pajamas are made in oxblood tinted crepes and tub silks, usually in pastel shades.

In one of the new French models a jacket in three tones of blue is worn with trousers of the deepest tone. Riquena patterns and vivid colors are shown in some pajama ensembles in which coat, tailored to match the suit. Charming suits of Chinese brocade crepe are shown in solid blues, greens, browns and rich gold and cocoa shades.

THAT BODY OF YOURS

BY James W. Barton, M. D.

(Registered in accordance with the Copyright Act.)

I talk often about the value of play for the child because for a number of years I have been privileged to see its effects upon young folks.

As a physician I could see how the chest became wider, the body as a whole more agile, and the mind more alert.

I have spoken also about its value in creating self-reliance and self control; high moral qualities that become part of the boy or girl for life. Also how it helped the naturally nervous child, the one who would be off to himself with his books or perhaps only with his thoughts.

However, play and playgrounds have found a champion from a profession other than medicine. Bishop James E. Freeman says: "Hitherto we have recognized a trinity of agencies, namely, the church, the home, and the school, as fundamental and essential to life. Added to these today, and next in order are the playgrounds and the recreational centers."

Just think of that for a moment that the church, home, and school were essentials has been recognized, but the playground is certainly coming into its own when a clergyman will give it such a standing in the life of the people.

A youngster at church, school, or in the home is under instruction, and he must take the teachings of these three without perhaps having much to say or do about it.

But on the athletic field, although subject to the rules, he lets free all the emotions and energies of his being.

He wins sometimes, at other times he loses. He gets his innings and must in return give the other fellow his innings.

His emotions are really himself, and the big point is that he stands or falls on his own merits, and must in every game "do unto others as he would like to be done by."

I believe you will agree that for life training the playground is one of the essentials even as are church, school and home.

ROCKEFELLER THRIFT.

John D. Rockefeller, giving away dimes more profusely than ever, preaches his favorite sermon as follows: "When I give a dime to a child, I have an opportunity to say something which may be helpful. I can ask what a child does with his money. I can tell him that the only way to get rich is to save, and that I would like to see everyone rich. I feel that if I can give some good advice at least that is something. These may be only dimes, but it is dimes which make fortunes."

Heating this, it is not necessary either to bow down and worship the almighty dime nor to bite a tenpenny nail in two to relieve one's feelings. All that is called for is a realization of how overvalued and inadequate is the dollar Rockefeller's thrift propaganda is far less adequate than his own practice.

Wise saving is only half the game of getting ahead. Wise spending is the other half. It is as important to know when to spend a dime as when to put it in the toy bank. People talk about saving without saving, by borrowing and shrewdly using other people's money, though that is not to be universally recommended. Moreover, if everybody were rich, nobody would be rich. To be rich is to have more money than other people.

CONVICTS KILL GUARD, WOUND TWO DEPUTIES.

Houston, Tex., July 28 (AP)—Though pursued throughout the night by 35 bloodhounds and 100 armed men, the five convicts who shot their way out of the Imperial State Prison Farm near Richmond, Tex. yesterday, were still at large this morning in the swamps and creeks along the Brazos river, 50 miles south of here.
One guard was killed and two deputies injured, one perhaps fatally, by the eight men who fled from the prison shortly after midnight, were rounded in a gun battle with deputies.

Financial and Commercial

New York, July 28 (AP)—A further substantial recovery in prices took place in today's stock market. Buying orders were distributed over a fairly broad list, but centered largely in the high-priced industrial specialties, motors, farm implements, steels, and public utilities. The gains ran from 1 to 6 points.

Bullish enthusiasm was created by the relative ease of call money in the face of approaching month-end settlements, and the fact that the market had definitely broken out of the narrow trading area within which it had been moving, on the upside. Favorable earnings reports and the optimistic reviews of the weekly mercantile reviews also helped to stimulate buying.

Montgomery Ward regained its old position as a market leader by climbing nearly six points to a new high record at 176 1/2. Commercial solvents jumped 5 1/2 points, Hudson Motors 1 1/2 and Radio, Eastman Kodak, Case Threshing, Electric Auto Line, Lambert and International Telephone advanced 2 to nearly 4 points.

The closing was strong. Total sales aggregated 1,000,000 shares.

The church was filled to its utmost capacity with friends of the bride and groom. The ushers were John Dodd, Ed. Gaffney, John Gaffney. Japanese Press Attacks Treaty

Peking, July 28 (AP)—"Sam's Secret Diplomacy" is the heading which appeared today over an editorial, dealing with the treaty signed between the United States and China, printed in the North China Standard, a Japanese newspaper. The editorial said:

"As an adroit maneuver, a cunning conception, the treaty rescues to the doubtful benefit of American international relationships at a time when straightforward statesmanship would be more in line with the modern demand for open diplomacy."

In its news columns, the paper said: "China gains nothing by the treaty other than to see on paper what the treaty powers have already offered."
"The treaty which surrenders our rights now held by the United States is generally regarded as a maneuver intended to furnish the Republican administration with election material. The view is widespread that the United States contrived a smart piece of work with considerable publicity value."

The complete secrecy surrounding the negotiations and the haste with which the treaty was concluded is regarded as unfortunately precipitating a cleavage between the other powers and America and especially irritating Japan."

REPUBLICANS WATCHING CLOSELY IN THE SOUTH.

Washington, July 28 (AP)—Republicans are pursuing a watchful waiting policy in the south, and they are watching pretty closely.

Party leaders of North Carolina were called into conference yesterday by Chairman Work of the national committee, who is going thoroughly over the southern situation. Charles A. Jonas, Republican committeeman for North Carolina, reported encouraging prospects for Herbert Hoover.

The North Carolinians did not anticipate any help from Senator Simmons, of that state, who recently announced, without explanation, his resignation as Democratic national committeeman. They did not expect him to bolt his ticket nor did they expect him to work for Governor Smith.

Brownlow Jackson, chairman of the Republican state committee, and Stuart W. Cramer, Charlotte textile manufacturer, accompanied Jonas and it was the view of the North Carolinians that the national party would not make a drive in the solid south, leaving the work to its representatives there.

Little Band-Wagon Journeys

16.—The First Republican Campaign

"FREE speech, free will and free thought" with this catchy slogan the new-born Republican party in 1855 pitched with zeal into its first national campaign, which for enthusiasm and excitement was to surpass any Presidential campaign the nation had seen since the picturesque "log cabin and hard cider" contest that took place in 1840.

The campaign for "Tippecanoe and Tyler too" had been waged by the Whigs in a spirit of hilarious jollity. But while the Republicans of 1855 sang, danced and paraded with equal gusto, there was an overtone of deep gravity in the political developments of that summer and autumn. The issue of slavery extension or freedom lent an unusual moral fervor to the contest.

In the West there were but two parties, the Democratic and the Republican. In the East the skeletons of the Whig and Know-Nothing parties still rattled. The main battle soon was seen to be between the Democrats, whose nominee was James Buchanan, and the newly hatched Republicans with their appealing western hero, General Fremont, who had planted the Stars and Stripes on the highest peak of the Rocky mountains and with whom they hoped to plant their standard victoriously on the White House. Ex-President Millard Fillmore, as nominee of the Whigs and Know-Nothings, was destined to be a mere "also-run."

The paramount issue for the Republicans was in truth as well as figuratively a burning and bleeding one. In Kansas and Missouri the guerrilla warfare between slavery and anti-slavery forces struggling for dominance under the Douglas scheme of "squatter sovereignty" was raging, with murders and plundering on both sides. Republicans pointed with horror to "bleeding Kansas."

Southern Democrats protested that their Republican opponents were trying to elect their ticket by "shrieks for freedom." The abolitionists had aroused genuine apprehension in the slave states. Representative southern statesmen and newspapers uttered the threat, which they were grimly to carry out five years later, that Republican victory would be followed by southern secession. Real fears that Fremont's election would mean the end of the Union caused thousands in the North to vote for Buchanan, who was pledged not to stir up the slavery question.

But the Republicans, deriding southern secession threats as political "bluff," swung with keener enthusiasm into their long torchlight parades led by pioneers bearing gleaming axes reminiscent of Fremont's exploits as a western "pathfinder," or lustily joined Rocky Mountain glee clubs in singing Fremont campaign songs, or listened in soberer mood in great mass meetings to exhortations by publicists, preachers and poets.

Clergymen, professors and literary men, especially those in New England, the abolitionist stronghold, furnished to a marked degree the Republican leadership. The moral aspects of the slavery question made a strong appeal to them. Bryant and Emerson entered actively into the campaign. Longfellow canceled a trip to Europe in order to be in America to vote. Whitier begged votes for Fremont in passionate verse. Harriet Beecher Stowe, who previously had stirred up so much abolitionist sentiment with her famous "Uncle Tom's Cabin," published another anti-slavery novel.

Southerners, convinced that the institution of slavery was a beneficent one, were wounded by the bitterness of these northern leaders denouncing their system, and felt that the North was displaying fanatical hatred when northern preachers thundered anti-slavery sermons from their pulpits and uttered public prayers for Buchanan's defeat.

Southern fears of "Black Republican" victory, while not wholly idle, proved to be premature. The election went against the Republicans. But the popular vote of 1,341,264 for Fremont as against 1,838,100 for Buchanan was a surprising demonstration of strength by a new third party in its first national election. It gave promise of future success and inspired heightened apprehension among its opponents.

How Franklin Proved

Fitness for Position

Benjamin Franklin, at nineteen years old, visited London. He was in search of work and went straight to a printing office. The foreman was rather disdainful and said:

"Ah, a lad from America seeking employment as a printer? Well, do you really understand the art of printing? Can you set type?"

Young Franklin stepped to one of the cases and in a brief space set up these words from the first chapter of John's gospel: "Nathanael said unto him, Can any good thing come out of Nazareth? Philip said unto him, Come and see." The text conveyed such a delicate rebuke, and the work was done so quickly and accurately that a position was granted him at once.

French Royal Dynasties

The Merovingian race, from 420-752, had 36 sovereigns of France, including Pharamond; the Carolingian race, from 752-987, had 16 sovereigns; the Capetian race, from 987-1545, had 37 sovereigns. The intervals of a republic were from 1792 to 1804 and of the empire of Napoleon I from 1804 to 1814. In 1848 Louis Napoleon was President and emperor from 1852-1871. A republican form of government was established in 1871.

Fled From Painted Baboon

A blue baboon has stopped the raids of wild animals in Kenya, South Africa, according to latest reports. Elephants, hippopotami, bushpigs and baboons that have done much damage in villages have been completely routed by the "strange creature," which consisted of a baboon that was captured, shaved and painted a bright blue before he was released to try to join his fellows, who fled at his appearance.

Invention Long Delayed

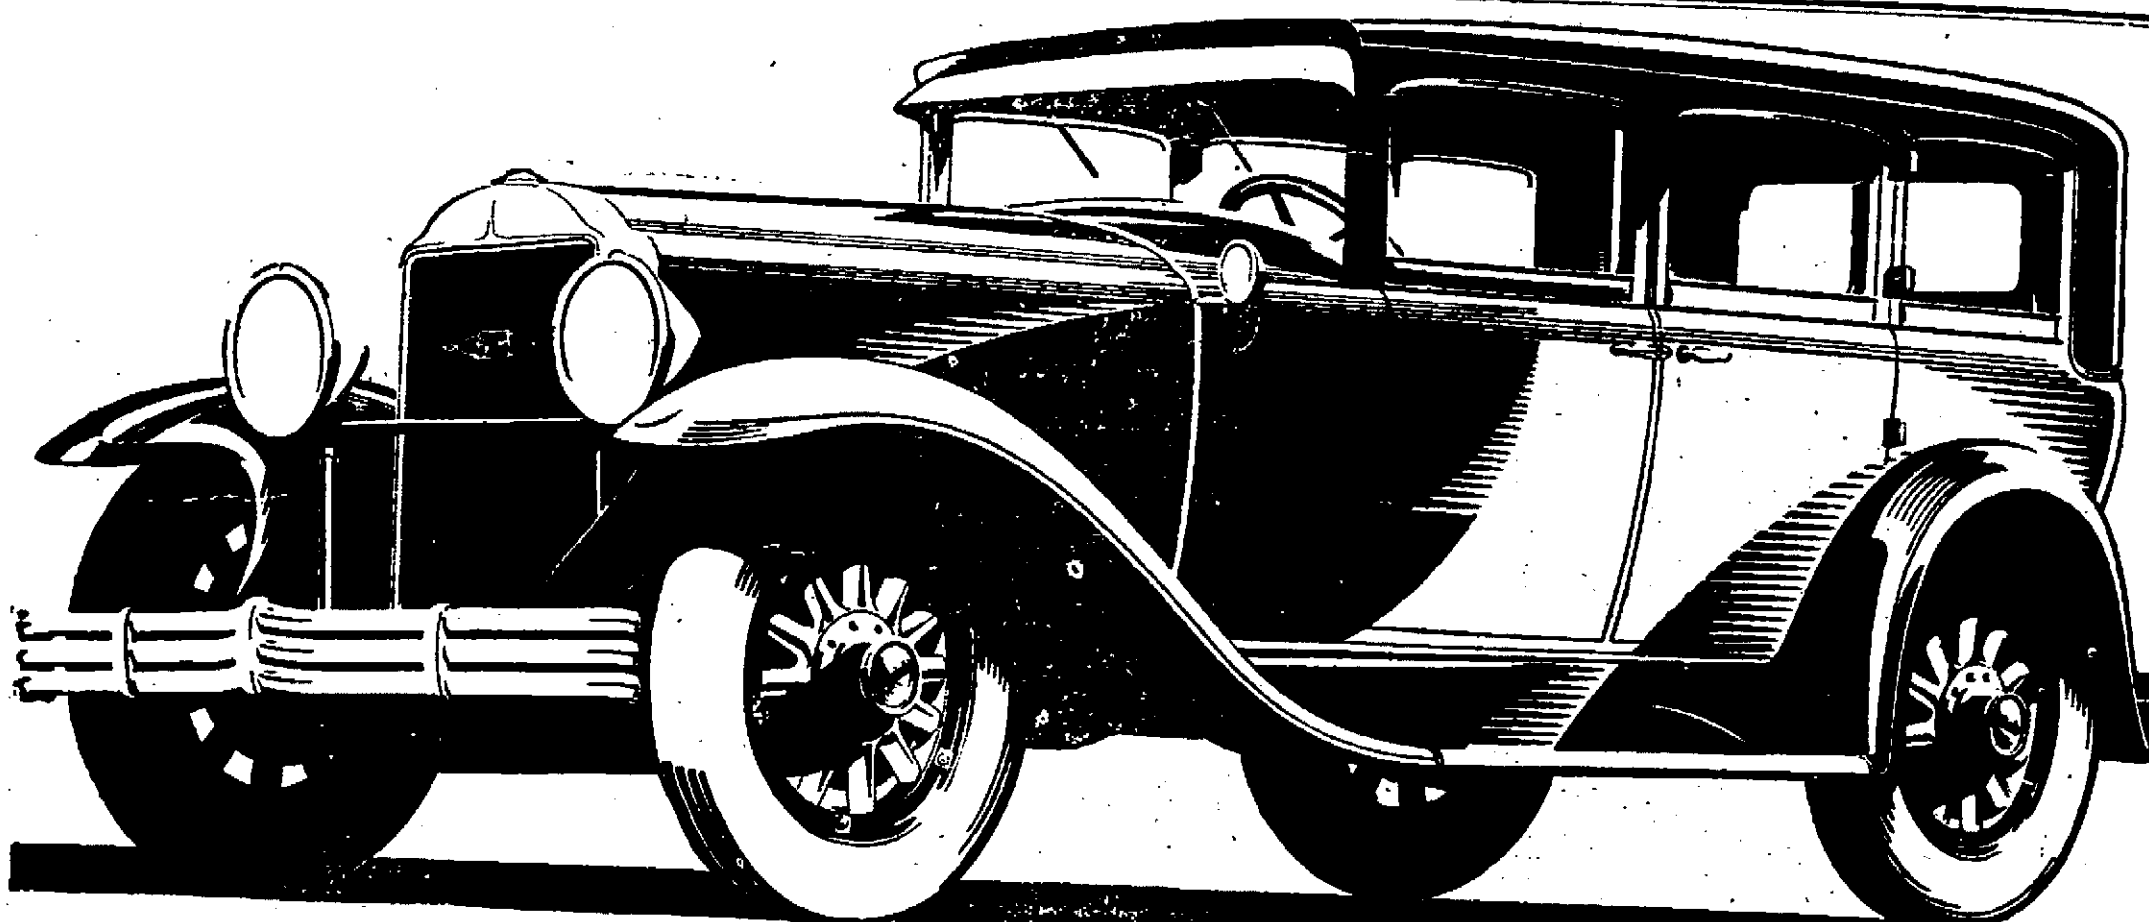

There is nothing more possible than a rope, and yet in the march of labor-saving invention a rope-making machine was long one of the last on the list. So long, indeed, did rope-making remain one of the manual arts that the name of the place where the work was done has become ingrained in popular speech, and the rope factory, though in no way meriting the appellation, is still known in some quarters as the "rope-walk."

A story of a romantic discovery of riches comes from Rhodesia. A woman farmer went for a picnic, during which she and a companion came across an outcrop of quartz. As a result of her dream digging was undertaken, and in a short time a valuable gold reef was found.

Newkirk-Frear Family Reunion

Descendants of one of the oldest families of Ulster county, one whose ancestors came here from Holland in the year 1655, met at Greenfield, N. Y., on Sunday, July 22, at the old homestead of Peter L. Newkirk, which is still owned by his son, John H. Newkirk. Fifty members of the Newkirk and Frear families gathered at the old Greenfield farm, the birthplace of many of them, for a reunion, where the hospitality of John H. Newkirk and family was extended to all comers from near and far, even to the third and fourth generations of the clan.

After greetings were exchanged all gathered on the veranda around the table in a short song service, following which a bounteous luncheon of sandwiches, coffee, salads, pickles, fruits, cakes and ice cream was served.

A social time succeeded the feast, after which an informal business meeting convened, and it was decided to make the reunion an annual event and to appoint an individual from each section as a committee to form an organization to be known as "The Newkirk Family Reunion."

The following officers were elected: President, Fields E. Newkirk; vice-president, Mrs. Samantha Moulie; secretary and treasurer, Mrs. Sam King. The meetings will be held each year on the Sunday following Labor Day at the old homestead at Greenfield, N. Y.

Late in the afternoon and early evening the guests departed for their various homes with eager anticipations of similar events to come.

The guests present were as follows: Mr. and Mrs. McElrath, Howard McElrath, Mrs. William B. King, William B. King, Jr., and Robert Nelson, of Newburgh, N. Y.; Mrs. Samantha Moulie and J. S. Moulie, of Pine Bush, N. Y.; Mr. and Mrs. George Frear, of Lowman, N. Americans Again Favored to Take Olympic Honors

Twenty-five Hundred Stars from 47 Nations Expected to Put Up Most Spectacular Battle—Opposition to American Supremacy Doubly Strengthened.

By Alan G. Gould, Associated Press Sports Editor.

Amsterdam, Holland, July 27 (AP)—What is likely to be the most spectacular battle for world's athletic honors since the Olympic games were first held in 776 B.C. will be the first five events of the week's championship track and field program. Twenty-five hundred stars from 47 nations will take part during the week.

Once again it is America against the world. Uncle Sam's agile youths are equipped for the big battle despite a succession of training difficulties and once more are favorites, but for the first time the strongest combined threat to their supremacy ever had.

Four years ago it was the Finns and the Britons who upset Yankee prestige, especially on the track. The opposition is doubly strengthened this time, for Germany is returning to the Olympic fold for the first time since 1912 and France has the most conspicuous set of title contenders she has had in many a moon.

In the running events in which record-breaking prospects depend almost entirely upon the condition of the much-maligned stadium track, the United States is better equipped than in any Olympiad since the war. Especially are her hopes high in the middle distances. In the field events, where the texture of the clinders has no effect, there looms a Herculean battle of brains and skill with the Americans pegged harder than ever, even in their pet events such as the shotput and the hammer.

Rival speed, brawn and skill all will figure in tomorrow's opening events, which include the shotput and high jump as well as trials in the 400 meter hurdles, 800 meter run and 100 meter dash, the sprint classic of the Olympics.

America ought at least to split even in the two field events, for the quartet of Yankee jumpers, led by the Olympic champion, Harold Osborn, of the Illinois A. C., and the Stanford Stalwart, Bob King, appears to be the class of the field. In the shotput, America has four men capable of record performances to pit against the German ace, Emil Hirschfeld, whose world's mark of 51 feet, 9 1/2 inches has just been put on the record books.

John Ruck, of the Los Angeles A. C., has been showing the best form among the Americans, with Herman Brin, University of Washington star, next best, but the Stanford pair of Eric Kreuz and Harlow Rothert are capable of rising to winning heights in a pinch.

German Bank on Hirschfeld.

The Germans are banking heavily on the giant Hirschfeld, who in a final practice session shoved the 16-pound ball the astonishing distance of 52 feet, one inch, under conditions which will likely encounter during actual Olympic competition. The Teuton figures the long waits between puts, possibly as much as 45 minutes, will mean churning up of the circle surface, covering his feet with sand before putting the shot.

Two other German-American tests promise to feature the opening day, the first giving the initial comparison among rival sprint kings and the second exhibiting the 800-meter form of Lloyd Hahn, the Boston A. A. "Express" and Dr. Otto Peltzer, former record-holder, not forgetting the capabilities of Douglas Lowe, British holder of the Olympic title, and Seraphin Martin, French star, who set a new world's record for the distance a fortnight ago.

The German sprinting forces suffered a last minute blow by the elimination of Dr. Friedrich Wichmann, who pulled a tendon but the Teutons still have a pair of speed merchants in Richard Cortis and Hubert Houben to pit against the quartet of flying Americans, Frank Wykoff, Bob McAllister, Henry Russell and Claude Bracey. Some of them are likely to meet before the day's second trials are completed, but the real tests in the semi-finals and finals are scheduled for Monday.

The result of the final American workouts has established Wykoff and Russell as the principal American hopes. McAllister, who is exuding confidence, may furnish a bigger surprise than he did in pushing Wykoff to the limit in the American final at Cambridge, but fears are expressed that he has worked too hard. Bracey apparently has failed in an attempt to regain his best spring condition.

The first joint tests for Hahn and Peltzer since the American defeated the German indoors at New York during the winter brings together a pair whose conditioning has been one of the most interesting chapters of Olympic history now in the making.

Both have trained apart from the pack, applying special methods according to their own formulae. Hahn, under the ever-watchful eye of Jack Ryder, Boston A. A. coach, and Peltzer on his own. But there the similarity ends.

Hahn Out for Double Honors.

Hahn's workouts have been over varying routes but all evidencing his remarkable speed and stamina. They have been open and above board, the workouts of Hahn's, while Peltzer's training has been accompanied by the utmost secrecy. Ever since the Teuton injured his ankle in field sports two months ago, his condition and ability to regain his record breaking form of 1925 have been doubtful, even in the German camp, where he has been regarded as the big enigma.

Hahn is avowedly out for double honors with five straight days of running in sight, including several races at 1,500 meters. But Peltzer's entry in the longer race depends upon his showing in the 400. Meanwhile the British are banking their champion, Lowe, to repeat, while the French are equally as sure that Martin will run them all into the ground.

France Not in Olympic Parade

Amsterdam, Holland, July 27 (AP)—France's Olympic team, withdrawn from today's opening parade at the last minute as a result of a row with the gate-keeper begun yesterday and issued a threat to quit actual competition.

The jarring note on the otherwise spectacular and impressive inaugural caused a furor.

The Dutch authorities, through the general Olympic Secretary Vanrossen, immediately issued a statement saying that the French withdrawal was caused by the weather.

It was learned, however, that the action was the result of an encounter yesterday in which one of the French Olympic officials was struck by a Dutch gate-keeper who had refused him admittance to the stadium.

After this altercation the Dutch authorities agreed to remove the gate-keeper, but he was still on the job when the French delegation arrived for today's opening ceremonies. Without hesitation, they withdrew and sent word that they considered the situation "offensive."

Prince Henry Opens Olympiad

Colossal Parade To Stadium Where Opening Exercises are Held—Greeks Lead With America 12nd in Line.

By Louis H. Loewer, Associated Press Staff Writer.

Amsterdam, Holland, July 27 (AP)—The ninth Olympiad of the modern era was opened this afternoon by Prince Consort Henry of the Netherlands on behalf of Queen Wilhelmina. Athletes of forty-seven countries, a record in Olympic history, filed before the Mecklenburg Duke upon whom, in the Queen's absence, fell the honor of representing the ancient Royal House of Orange-Nassau.

Presenting a colossal picture in variegated sport costumes, the best of the world's athletes stood at attention as the historic national anthem, "Wilhelmus Van Nassauwen" was struck up by the royal military band and marine bands and sung by a massed chorus of twelve hundred singers from Amsterdam, The Hague, Rotterdam, Haarlem, Brda, Maastricht, and Hertogenbosch singing societies.

Long before the Prince Consort arrived in a gala carriage drawn by four of the sleekest steeds in the royal stables, thousands of Olympic fans, followers crowded the Olympic Stadium.

In the diplomatic box, next to that occupied by members of the royal party, the foreign representatives included the American minister, Richard M. Tobin, and the ministers or charges of Argentina, Chile, Cuba, Haiti, Mexico, Panama and Uruguay.

Thousands View Free Pageant.

Thousands outside the Stadium were given a free pageant as the royal procession made its way slowly through the streets from the palace, in the heart of Amsterdam, to the stadium. The royal party was headed by the chief of police in the first court carriage and followed in the second by Amsterdam's enterprising burgomaster, Willem de Vlucht. In the colorful robes of his official position many mistook him for Henry, whom he strikingly resembles.

The court carriage bore Queen Wilhelmina's master of household and then followed Prince Henry's vehicle. The procession ended with carriages bearing the prince consort's aides.

At the stadium the prince was received by the international Olympic committee headed by the executive committee, among whom were General Charles Serrill and the Dutch Olympic organizing committee, who conducted the prince to his box amid the strains of the national anthem.

March of Nations

No sooner was the royal party seated than the historic march of the nations into and around the stadium began. Almost 5,000 athletes and officials marched by in the course of a parade lasting a full hour, each country headed by one bearer of the national colors and another bearer of a standard on which was inscribed the name of the country. The athletes entered by the Marathon Gate, opposite the royal box, marched around the stadium, lowering flags in salute as they passed the prince, and on completion of the march formed columns in the center of the arena behind their respective standard, facing the royal stand.

Greeks Head Procession

This procession was headed by the Greeks, as originators of the Olympic idea. They were followed by other nations in the order of the Dutch Alphabet, America being 42nd and the Dutch themselves last as hosts.

The Olympic international and the Dutch organizing committees, now ranged themselves in the arena in a semi-circle directly before the royal stand. They followed an address in Dutch by J. Th. Derivier, doctor of theology and ex-minister of fine arts and public instruction, in which he emphasized Holland's delight at the honor of entertaining the Ninth Olympiad, reviewing the Greek ideal of Olympic competition and admonishing contestants to conduct themselves according to the Greek ideal of friendly and sportsmanlike rivalry rather than with the idea of humiliating fellow-competitors.

The chorus then chanted an old Dutch chorale invoking God's blessing.

Haron Schimmelpennick Vanderveer, president of the Dutch Olympic committee, followed Visser with a brief address of welcome. He then asked Prince Henry to open the games.

The Prince, rising, used the old formula: "In the name of her majesty, the Queen, I declare the opening of the Olympic games of 1928, celebrating the ninth Olympiad of the modern era."

His words, like previous addresses, were made audible to the whole audience by loud speakers. Scarcely had they reached the ears of his hearers when there was a blast of trumpets and the roar of cannon.

The Olympics flag was slowly hoisted on the main flagpole, while the huge chorus sang J. J. H. Verhulst's "Flag Song."

International and Dutch committees now gave way to flag and standard bearers of the nations, among whom were Bud Houser, discus star, and Johnny Weismuller, aquatic speedster, representatives of the United States.

Standing in a semi-circle about Harry Denis, famous Dutch football player, they placed their left hand on their national flags and raised their right as Denis, on behalf of the participants, swore to the following Olympic oath: "We swear that we present ourselves at the Olympic games as fair competitors respecting the rules governing the games and being desirous of participating in them in a chivalrous spirit for the honor of our countries and of sport."

After this impressive ceremony the chorus sang Holland's "Glorie" and then officials and participants marched out of the stadium via the Marathon gate in reverse order from their entry.

Two Great Tennis Champions

Helen Hills, American and international tennis champion, with Rene Lacoste, French star and holder of the American singles championship, as they appeared at Forest Hills.

BASEBALL NOTES

Garland Buckeye, pitcher for the Cleveland Indians, has been released unconditionally.

Art Jahn, outfielder of the Phillies, has the biggest hands in baseball. He can hold six balls level in one hand.

Hooks Walker, right-hander, who pitched for the University of Pennsylvania, has been signed by Washington.

The San Francisco Seals have clinched the Pacific Coast League pennant for the first half of the season.

National league has a "professor of umpiring" in Bob Emslie, who teaches the young arbiters to call them as they see them.

Ty Cobb, member of the Philadelphia Athletics, is forty-two years old and has been playing major league baseball for twenty-three years.

Oklahoma City, leaders in the Western league, is the youngest club in Class A baseball today, the team's average age being twenty-three.

Uncle Wilbert Robinson is one of the few managers in baseball wearing specs. Maybe they are double vision and make his Dodgers look twice as good.

Paul Easterling, Detroit's young outfielder, has been released on option to Toronto of the International league. He may be recalled on a moment's notice.

The Eastern league will this year offer a prize to the man adjudged the most valuable to his club. The selection will be made by a group of scribes.

Tom O'Hara, boss of the Denver Country club and dean of this country's caddy masters, has trained approximately 30,000 boys in his thirty years of service.

Al Foss, star pitcher of the Holy Cross baseball team will play no more college baseball, having signed to play with the Milwaukee Brewers of the American association.

Willie Kamm has emerged from his batting slump and is hitting the ball hard once more. A few years ago he specialized in two-baggers to left-center. Now he is banging singles down the left field.

Before the game of June 25, infielder Howard Freigau of the Brooklyn Robins was released to the Boston Braves on waivers. Thus, Hornsby gets another former Cardinal who played with him at St. Louis.

The new press box at the Cubs' park will be the finest in the majors when it is completed. It is suspended just under the upper tier and is being constructed in such a manner that it will be entirely enclosed with glass paneling for cold weather, such as is encountered both early and late in the season. Steam heat is to be another welcome feature.

Cleveland fans are laying plans for a "day" for Outfielder Charley Jamieson. They say his good and faithful work over a long period of years entitles him to some special recognition. A Cleveland newspaper has taken up the idea and the plan is to put over "Jamieson Day" as a big event later in the season.

Only four amateur golfers have succeeded in winning the United States open championship since it began in 1895—Bobby Jones, Jerry Travers, Chick Evans and Francis Ouimet.

Paul Smith, the Oregon miner, whose home is in Portland and who finished in the recent transcontinental trek from Los Angeles to New York city, used 31 pairs of shoes in the race and more than 200 pairs of socks.

Germany's U-Boat Loss

It was announced on November 29, 1913, that Germany had lost about 200 U-boats in the course of the war. According to a later compilation made by Reuter's agency, the total number of German submarines lost by accident and enemy action was 305.

Sunday Schedule Of Local Nines

Provided weather conditions are favorable the following Kingston baseball teams will play as scheduled Sunday afternoon.

Koenig All-Stars vs. Rondout A. C. at Block Park.

Clermonts vs. Ellenville at Hasbrouck Park.

Pan-Ams vs. Fleischmanns at Fleischmanns.

Kingston All-Stars vs. Jeffersonville at Jeffersonville.

Spartans vs. Woodstock at Woodstock.

Games and sports were advocated before the National Education association by James Edward Rogers, director of the National Physical Education service as means of "teaching those traits of character that are essential to good citizenship."

Asserting that the world needs sportsmanship in its international and business relationships, he declared that physical education "teaches sport not for sport's sake, but for the sake of sportsmanship."

"There is a close correlation between physical fitness and personal efficiency in business, success in human relationships and happiness at home and abroad," he said.

"A physically fit person is more likely to be efficient, happy and useful. A physically fit nation is better prepared to meet any emergencies either from within or without. Industrial waste from inefficiency and illness can be substantially reduced through better physical fitness programs."

Tagging Major League Bases

(By Herbert Wm. Barker.) (Associated Press Sports Writer.)

The St. Louis Cardinals' second invasion of the east thus far has proven neither pleasurable nor profitable.

The Cards dropped another game to the Brooklyn Robins yesterday, 5 to 2, and saw their National League lead cut to four games as the revived Cincinnati Reds took another fall out of the Phils, 3 to 1.

Dizzy Vance held the Cardinals to six hits, one of them Jim Bottomley's 22nd home run. At that Vance was pitching losing ball until the sixth when the Dodgers uncorked a three-run rally at the expense of the aged left-handed spittballer, Clarence Mitchell. Clarence wasn't around when the inning closed and his successors, Harold Haid and Sylvester Johnson, were not exactly hit-proof.

The Reds decided their game at Philadelphia in the first inning when Jimmy Ring was touched for four singles and half that many runs. The Phils' only score off Pete Donohue came when Don Hurst, slugging first-sacker, drove out his 16th homer of the year.

The Chicago Cubs managed to escape the Boston jinx for a day when Sheriff Blake gave the Braves only five hits and won a close 2 to 1 decision. Art Delaney pitched good ball for the Braves but his team with or without men on the bases.

Fred Fussell pitched good ball against the New York Giants but his teammates succeeded in kicking the game, 4 to 2. The Corsairs contributed four errors which figured in the scoring of three of the Giants' runs.

The Philadelphia Athletics took advantage of the New York Yankees' idleness to beat the Chicago White Sox again, 7 to 4, and cut the "Champs" lead to eight games. The Sox gave young Ed Walsh a four-run lead to work on in the first inning but the son of the old master was not equal to the occasion. Fast fielding saved him until the eighth when the A's fell on him and George Connolly for six runs. Lefty Grove pitched the last two innings for the Sox. He allowed three hits but fanned four men.

The Washington Senators salvaged two games out of the five with the St. Louis Browns by socking Blaine Holder and Ogden for eleven hits and a 7 to 4 victory. Three runs in the ninth capped the contest, a free-hitting affair featured by six doubles, three triples and a home run, the last blow by Heinie Manush.

Cardinals stars at the top include Taylor Douthitt in total hits, 131; Frank Frisch in stolen bases, 18; and Bottomley in three specialties—runs scored, 85; doubles, 32; and triples, 13. In addition, he remains second in home runs to Hack Wilson, who tops the League with 23. Bottomley has 21.

Individual batters following Hornsby and Waner are: Grantham, Pittsburgh, .358; Bottomley, St. Louis, .355; Sisler, Boston, .349; Lindstrom, New York, .348; Rothger, St. Louis, .341; Douthitt, St. Louis, .338; Scott, Pittsburgh, .331; and Frisch, St. Louis, .332.

Team batting finds the Pirates shipping merrily along in front with .308, but the Cardinals are clubbing a dangerous .297 and are rising. The Giants are third with .284, one point more than the Reds can show.

The Cubs lead in team fielding with .974. Cincinnati and St. Louis are tied for second, each having .973. The Reds' double-play total has reached 121.

New York—The knitted ensemble is a favorite in all sports events, and is frequently vivid in color.

Lightweight trimmings are timely and smart. Many elite French women are reported to be adding them to their plain and flowered crepe dresses.

It is significant that blue was the popular shade at the Opera Ball in Paris.

Printed velvets, in dots and small patterns are one of the style developments for early autumn.

Muslin blue tulle and crystal is a charming combination frequently met with this summer.

Reports from Deauville are that white is prominent for day wear, but that the shade known as egg-shell has replaced white for evening.

Natural straws of exotic type are again in vogue and are often trimmed with velvet ribbon matching the costume.

Deauville again sponsors white canvas shoes; also tan ones for sports.

A tendency to affect such clothes as were heretofore confined to town wear is also reported from Deauville.

Among the several names given to the various shiny black straws being worn is Chinese, a Reboux product.

Lightweight Velvet IsPromised for Autumn

Lightweight printed velvets may take the place of flowered chiffons in fall, according to predictions from Paris. They have a place of prominence in the advance autumn showings and some houses are predicting that they will be worn for late summer.

The new velvets appear in small geometric patterns much like the designs on chiffon and crepe de chine which so extensively used for summer.

The most common use for velvet is in coats, made on straight lines, with or without a collar of fur. Some longer length straight jackets are also worn. At one house a gray and white printed velvet jacket is worn with a plaid black satin skirt. The skirt almost matches the mottled design of the gray and white feather, worn with the costume.

Printed velvet evening wraps are prominently shown in the midsummer collections. A noted designer uses a kind of printed velvet in an evening wrap with a shoulder length skirt. The wrap proper is of beige and printed with a conventional geometric pattern in black. It has a belt of coral colored chiffon lined in pale gray.

The same dressmaker shows several dresses in which printed velvet is used in the manner of flowered chiffon for full skirts of more or less draped line. These dresses are long in the back. One model has a puff of velvet around the hips.

Lightweight velvet is used at many houses for dresses which are cut in bias or bias ruffles.

For the Littlest Girl

This One-Year-Old will be an enviable sight if attired in a sleeveless frock of coral color, with hat and shoes to match—all handmade, of course.

Weather and the Moon

Many people believe that it is a sign of cold weather when the moon is far to the north. There is probably no relation whatever between the weather and the apparent position of the moon. The moon's motions are uniform and its position can be computed for years and even centuries ahead. No such affinity exists in regard to the weather.—Pathfinder Magazine.

Flashes of Life Sketched in Brief

(By The Associated Press.)

New York—Harry Sinclair encountered Tex Rickard at the recent California show which proved more than golden. Harry asked how come there was a defeat. "I just killed a dog hole," Harry explained the promoter.

Rochester, N. Y.—Many prominent folks have been invited to a show which George Eastman will put on Monday to demonstrate some new motion picture process. Some forecasts are that it is films in color.

New York—A plan for adapting canned music to any photo play, reducing orchestra costs, has been booming various stocks and leading to reports of mergers under way.

Centerville, Md.—While John J. Harbo is conducting Governor Smith's campaign, his wife, mother of 12 children, is experimenting with the raising of fox on a country place which she has developed out of two abandoned farms.

Amsterdam—Uncle Sam seems to have lost in the Olympics already in one respect. His neighbor, the Lady of the Snows, has the fairest daughter at the games. Ethel Catherwood, Canadian high jumper, is photographed more than anybody else.

New York—Mme. Halide Edibe Hanum, feminist called from home. Is now visiting us. She says the practice of polygamy is fast disappearing. She thinks there is less in Turkey than in some European countries.

Washington—The Queen of the Navy is the battleship New Mexico. She has been awarded highest honors after competition in battleship efficiency, gunnery, engineering and communication. Now she may fly a pennant known as the meat ball.

San Diego, Cal.—It is too late for Captain William Pitt Scott, U. S. N., to take advantage of some of his privileges. Twenty-seven years ago the Sultan of Turkey sent him a medal entitling him to have six wives and wear a fez. The captain has just received the medal because not until the last congress authorized it were American officers permitted to receive foreign decorations. And neither polygamy nor fez is legal in Turkey now.

Washington—A Sandino follower prefers to lose his pants rather than take a chance on being bitten by a flying devil dog. Advice from Nicaragua are that a dozen rebels hung up a dozen pairs of trousers to dry. A marine aviation patrol came along. The rebels fled, leaving the pants flopping in the breezes.

New York—Colonel Theodore Roosevelt is to be back in uniform. He is to help train at the Citizens' Camp at Plattsburg.

HUNTS WHITE BIRD IN NEWFOUNDLAND

Explorers Seek Lost Plane of Nungesser and Gali.

Baltimore, Md.—Dr. James A. Nungesser, who has had considerable experience in exploring in Newfoundland, will lead a party of men in an expedition to the tablelands of the island, in search of traces of the plane of Nungesser and Gali, who were lost while attempting the first westward flight of the Atlantic.

Confident that Nungesser's plane, the White Bird, spanned the Atlantic, only to meet disastrous lead winds and be forced off his course, as was the Bremen, Doctor Nungesser says he will explore every table of the interior of the island. He said:

"My impression is that they crashed against tall trees or a mountain while lost in fog. There were a dozen reports that persons had heard their motor along the coast. The Guggenheim foundation spent thousands of dollars searching from the air for traces of their plane, but if they were lost in the tablelands the wreck could not be seen from the air."

"The White Bird would disappear from sight like a baseball in grass three feet high. With two or three trusted guides I will follow the Grand Codrory river into the dense woods of the island."

"I will send the guides back and forth across the island, crossing and recrossing until every mile of unexplored territory is covered. I am confident I will find traces of them."

"While I hold out no hope that they are alive, I believe we will find their wrecked plane. It is a little over a year since their brave attempt to fly from France to America failed, and it is not too late to make a final search."

"Nungesser's mother has always maintained that somebody will find the White Bird. I hope that I will be the fortunate man."

To Inherit $1,000,000 for Changing His Name

Omaha, Neb.—What's in a name? Millions, perhaps, for Seth Rosewater, the seventeen-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Rosewater of 253 Riverside drive, New York.

Young Rosewater legally took the name Seth Warner Buchard last February, his mother said. The Rosewaters formerly lived here. The name is that of the young man's maternal uncle, Anson W. Buchard, formerly an official of the General Electric company, who died last year. Buchard left no heirs besides his widow.

The widow, Mrs. Allene Buchard, was understood to have proposed that Seth become her principal heir, provided he take the name of her husband and thus perpetuate the Buchard name. The Buchard estate has been valued at more than a million dollars.

"My son has not been adopted," Mrs. Rosewater said. "He is merely going to carry on the Buchard name. Our name will be carried on by our eldest son."

$420,000 Set of Books Put in Harvard Library

Cambridge, Mass.—Eighty-eight slim volumes whose value was estimated at $420,000 now repose in the Harvard university library, having been brought here from New York under armed guard.

The volumes constituted a part of the famous Eli Abethan collection of the late William Augustus White of Brooklyn, and were given to the university by his son, Harold T. White, who acted on behalf of the heirs.

Among the most valuable of the books are the 1500 edition of "Romeo and Juliet," of which only 12 copies are believed extant; "Love's Labor Lost," 1508 first edition; "Much Ado About Nothing," 1600; a third edition, 1611, of "Hamlet," and a 1603 copy of "King Lear."

Uruguay Fruit Growers Win Government Aid

Montevideo, Uruguay.—To aid the country's fruit growers the government of Uruguay has created a credit of 10,000 pesos, which will be expended under the direction of agricultural department engineers in demonstrating how fruits should be classified and packed for export.

By the proper preparation of fresh fruit, Uruguay not only hopes to gain ship to Argentina, but also looks to Great Britain for an outlet. Recent Argentine regulations proved prejudicial to unclassified and unpacked Uruguayan fruits.

Dog Guards Crossing on Spanish Railroad

Monserrat, Spain.—A dog acts as guard of the grade crossing over the cogwheel railroad to the convent of Monserrat, to which thousands of pilgrims and tourists make excursions.

At ordinary times, when no trains are passing, the animal lies on a wooden bench at the side of the road, wearing a cap his owner made for him. When he hears a train approaching, he jumps up and stands on his hind legs, bearing between one of his paws and his breast a red flag which signals road travelers to a stop.
